

City Orders Valuation, Water, Sewer Increases

Following the advice of a citizens finance committee, the Canyon City Commission raised water and sewer rates and increased the taxable valuation of property Monday night.

Taxable valuations were raised from 40 per cent of actual value to 50 per cent, and the new water rates include a new minimum charge and adjustments in brackets. The sewer rate was doubled for residences and more than doubled for businesses. The new rates will take effect with the next billing, due to be sent out in the next two weeks.

At the meeting of the citizens committee Thursday night, Mayor Charles Donnell explained that the city needs more money immediately to meet current expenses, and also needs more money over a longer period in order to gain a sound financial basis.

He said the city owed $9817 that day, and had only $8000 in the general fund. "We knew we were going to run out of money, but we didn't know we'd do it so soon," the mayor said.

He estimated that during the period from the present to Jan. 1, the city would need $120,000—$10,000 per month for bond payments. The revenue expected during the same period is $70,000. With about $10,000 in the general and sinking funds, a deficit of $40,000 can be expected.

"I guess all this adding on through the years without providing to pay for it is catching up," Donnell said.

He explained that all the tax money collected this year has already been spent to pay last year's obligations, and practically none was set aside for debt service and operations for this year. "We have been using tax funds of this year to pay last year's bills," the mayor said.

"You fellows figure some method so we can set the tax money aside and have it to begin the next fiscal year," Donnell asked.

The committee studied the financial setup and made the suggestions adopted by the commission. Serving on the committee were W. F. Haggard, Levi Cole, Jack Jennings, Delbert Lowes, Roland Black, Clarence L. Thompson and Dr. R. A. Neblett.

The new water rates will include $3 for minimum charge instead of $2.50 previously. The minimum covers the first 3000 gallons. The charge for the next 3000 gallons, from 3000 to 6000, will be 60 cents per thousand.

The charge from 6000 to 15000 will be 40 cents per thousand. Residential charges for all over 15,000 gallons will be 25 cents per thousand. Commercial charges for all over 15,000 gallons will be 30 cents per thousand. The present schedule is: $2.50 minimum up to 3000 gallons; 40 cents per thousand from 3000 to 15,000; and 20 cents per thousand for all over 15,000.

The new sewer charge will be $3 for residences, $10 for small businesses, $15 for medium and $25 for large, generally. The ordinance will specify the classifications of businesses to be in each bracket.

A letter explaining the changes is being sent to each water user and taxpayer on the city's mailing list. The letter says:

"Your city government is practically broke. Money is not now available for paying current operation expenses, the salaries of city employees, and the heavy payments due upon our bonded debts. This situation has been developing gradually over a number of years as increased services were provided without adequate provision being made for their payment. A sharp decline in water sales in 1957, just after the bonded debt was increased by $650,000, made the problem more acute. Tax revenue which should have been available for the April 1, 1958-March 31, 1959, fiscal year has already been spent in discharging past obligations.

"No city government can continue to operate indefinitely upon such a basis; and the time of accounting has now caught up with Canyon. We have studied this problem carefully during the few weeks that we have been in office, and we have sought the assistance of a number of citizens in suggesting solutions. The conclusion was evident to everyone: more money would have to be raised at once. The city must be placed back on a balanced budget; it must regain financial stability as soon as possible.

"During the rest of 1958 we will need about $120,000 to maintain the minimum services that the city must provide. Monthly expenses and salaries average $10,000 ($60,000 for the next six months), and we must meet bond payments of approximately $60,000 before January 1. We now have about $10,000 in the general fund and the sinking fund. From existing revenue sources, we can anticipate only some $70,000 in income during the rest of this year. That leaves a deficit of about $40,000.

"The City of Canyon has two main sources of revenue: city taxes, which are not due until the first of the year; and the charges for water and sewage service. Most of the income so urgently needed must come from these sources if the city is to continue to provide basic city services. And, as so many of you have told us, there are many other needs which demand attention — repair of the streets, better fire and police protection, and many others — all of which cost money.

"To meet this crisis, we have regretfully taken the following steps as recommended to us by a group of your fellow citizens.

"1. City taxes will be based upon 50% of assessed valuation instead of the current 40%. The tax rate will remain at the present $1.50.

"2. The minimum residential water rate will become $3 with some increases in residential rates for additional usage. Other increases will be made for non-residential use. "3. The residential sewage charge will become $3. Similar increases will be made for non-residential use. These changes will become effective immediately.

"Even these increases will not be enough to solve our financial problems at once. But they, combined with the most economical management possible, will allow us to start the slow process of restoring Canyon to a sound financial position. We are establishing bookkeeping and other administrative changes designed to prevent recurrences of this type of crisis.

"We adopt these changes with deep regret. We, too, are taxpayers, and our costs will be increased along with yours. As your elected representatives, we have the duty of facing squarely the problems which confront the City and of taking what measures are necessary for their solution. We are sure that you share our pride in our city and that you want it to continue to be 'A Good Place To Live.' To that end, we ask your understanding and support in carrying out this program."

Three More Fires Hit Farmers

Trucks in wheatfields cost Randall County farmers another 150 acres of wheat and stubble in three fires during the past week.

R. B. Gist Jr. lost 20 acres of wheatfield and pasture Friday afternoon on his farm about 15 miles southeast of Canyon. Only four acres was wheat stubble and the remainder was pastureland.

The Gist fire, on the north side of the field, threatened the home of Virgil Dawdy. Neighbors and the Canyon Volunteer Fire Department put out the fire that started about 6 p. m.

Sunday afternoon, a fire that started less than a quarter-mile from the R. B. Elliott fire, which took 250 acres of wheat last Tuesday, burned 100 acres of wheat belonging to Roy and Earl Reynolds. The blaze started from a truck belonging to Smith Brothers of Hamlin, custom cutters working in the Reynolds field. The truck was destroyed.

Fanned by a light east breeze, the fire raced through the 340-acre field, but was stopped only yards short of a stubble field

Monday afternoon, another fire burned about 30 acres of wheat and stubble on the B. I. Bonifield farm about 16 miles east of Canyon, on the north side of Palo Duro Canyon.

Neighbors and a fire truck from Amarillo got the fire under control before the Canyon fire department reached the scene. The Canyon trucks had to travel 29 miles to get to the fire.

In addition to the trucks of the Canyon department, water trucks owned by Joe Currie and Crowe-Guide Cement Company answered the alarm. The water trucks were turned back before reaching the fire. Bonifield was cutting in the field when the fire started. It was pushed by a strong east wind, but was stopped shortly before it reached the Bonifield home and outbuildings. The Bonifields estimated another two hours of cutting would have finished the harvest.

The wheat was yielding about 40 acres per bushel. Fire Chief Bill Sternberg warned again about trucks and cars driving into wheatfields. He asked the cooperation of everyone in the county in being careful around the tinder-dry crops.

The dollar loss of wheat in the four fires in Randall County is now in the vicinity of $25,000 and possibly more.

'Dash of Bitters' Is Second Play In Summer Season of WT Theater

Cast in "A Dash of Bitters," second Summer Theatre production in the Branding Iron Theatre at West Texas State College, are three veteran stage players and a newcomer from White Deer High School's stage tournament play.

The psychological thriller uses a cast of four, two women and two men. Directed by William A. and Margaret Echols Moore, "A Dash of Bitters" opens Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. for a four-night stand. Robert L. Antrim is technical director.

Margaret Glenn of Amarillo, and formerly of Galveston, appears as Muriel Whitlock, a middle-aged spinster who is more than slightly unbalanced. Mrs. Glenn, who was a drama major at Texas Woman's University, appeared during the spring in the Amarillo Little Theatre's production of "Our Town."

Her ward, Virginia, is played by Rae June Hamilton, nee Jones, who is also from Amarillo. She also played in "Our Town," and assisted in make-up for the last two AIT plays. She returns to the BIT stage, where she appeared in 1952 in the Summer Theatre production of "What a Life." She also played in two other BIT plays, "Nine Girls" and "Angelica." Mrs. Hamilton was also active in WT Opera Workshop productions, and played in its first show, "HMS Pinafore" in 1952.

John Lee Welton, cast as a wily Latin American, Ricky Vidal, in "A Dash of Bitters," has been teaching the past two years in Lefors. Formerly of Pampa, Welton's best work at WT was in 1954 in "The Emperor Jones." He also appeared as the father, Joe Kelly, in "All My Sons," and was Tommy in the BIT's "The Hasty Heart."

Fourth part in the play, Matthew Fenn, will be played by Jack Reynolds of Stillwater, Okla. Reynolds moved to White Deer to complete his high school work, and played in that school's region-winning play, "Bumbo, The Clown." The

Redlegs Sweep Braves in Pair

The Braves, behind the pitching of Bob Devin, almost thwarted the Redlegs in their search for a seventh victory in Canyon's Little League Monday night.

Devin had a shutout going into the fourth inning, when the Redlegs erupted for three runs. The league leaders added five more in the fifth to take an 8-3 victory. Don Hawkins was the winning pitcher.

The Redlegs also won in the minor league ball game. The Dodgers were dumped by the Redlegs, 9-1, in Saturday night's game, with Alex de Schweinitz giving up only four hits. The minor league Redlegs took their game, 21-9.

Canyon News Begins New Weekly Feature Giving Views of Mayor

Beginning with this issue, The Canyon News will present a weekly feature written by Canyon's mayor, Charles Donnell.

A series of short, pungent thoughts of the mayor, the features will cover the operation of the city from the viewpoint of an underpaid elected official. Quick to stress that the views given in the thoughts are not necessarily those of the two commissioners, John P. Taylor and Lowell Harrison, the mayor will also admit that the commissioners might also share them.

Named "Mayor's Soap Box," the new weekly feature will normally be carried on the editorial page of The Canyon News. Look for it each week.

Harvest Hits Storage Snag

With Randall County's wheat harvest probably less than half finished, storage has become an acute problem. It is estimated that between one and two weeks will be needed to finish the harvest, provided the weather holds.

Farmers Elevator began dumping wheat on the ground Tuesday with the elevator full. John P. Taylor, co-owner of the elevator, said he has not been able to get enough freight cars to move the grain.

He is dumping the grain on Fifth Avenue in the block west of the high school, and plans to use the school's old tennis courts, also. No one lives on the street in that block.

Consumers Fuel and Elevator had to dump about 40 truckloads of grain Sunday while waiting for completion of a 280,000-bushel storage building. Arnold Prichard said he loaded out nine cars of grain Sunday, but farmers brought in more than could be handled in the elevator.

The new building was completed and put into use about 11 p. m. Sunday, and the elevator quit dumping on the ground then.

No great shortage of combines has been reported in the county, although many farmers could use extra machines if they were available. Two showers in the past week slowed the harvest in some places. Measurements of moisture in Canyon were .40 of an inch of hail and rain Thursday night and .08 of an inch Monday night. The Monday shower was heavier in some parts of the county.

And They Ask for Help

An odd thing, or bunch of things, happened to us last weekend.

The nation's railroads are in trouble, and Congress is trying to help out. In the past couple of weeks, we have been asked to help the railroads by explaining what is called the Smathers Bill, the bill that is designed to fix things up for the railroads.

We spent a great number of years eating off John Santa Fe, and occasionally we get down to Dad's house, and we get a chance to eat off John Santa Fe again. And naturally, we are quite friendly to the railroads—and therein lies our story.

We were scheduled to go to Dallas to the Texas Press Association convention, and we decided that we would make the trip by train in order to refresh our memory of the delights and joys of train travel—and we planned to use the trip as a springboard in order to explain the Smathers Bill. The Burlington schedule from Amarillo to Dallas is really fine for those who need to go there for a convention starting in the morning and ending in the evening.

Our trip started in fine fashion. The train was about on time, and lo and behold, it was one of those nice streamlined jobs. On the inside, the sleeper was little changed from the Pullmans of earlier days, but it was sleek and shiny.

Under the shine, however, was a major fault. In the morning, at teeth-brushing time, we found out that something was wrong with the line that puts air pressure into the water tank, and we had to go to the next car for water to wash our face.

Things can go wrong with the best of machines, though, and we didn't let that little trouble bother us—we practically forgot it after we had a couple of cups of good coffee in the diner.

Two nights later we were ready to come back home. We caught the train, and found the sleeper this time to be of an earlier vintage. The porter told us that it had been put onto the train at the last moment, because the regular car was "bad order," the line that puts air pressure in the water tank was broken. Apparently the regular car was the one we rode two nights before, and it hadn't been fixed.

Riding the old sleeper was nothing to dismay anyone, though, and we looked forward to a good night's sleep. Not so. Something was wrong with the air conditioning, and cool air is a necessity to a Panhandle boy down in the humid climate of Dallas. The air conditioning worked pretty well until we got to Fort Worth, then it stopped. We sat in the Fort Worth station for 1½ hours—an hour longer than the schedule calls for—and the car got hotter and hotter and hotter until it was cooler outside. We know, we went outside to cool off.

The reason the air conditioning was off was simple. The batteries on the car were down and not strong enough to run the machinery unless the car was travelling and generating more electricity. The stations have connections to supply electricity from the outside, but no one bothered to hook one up until about a minute before we left.

The heat in the Pullman was so intense that a man and his three children, who were occupying two lower berths and two upper berths, moved out of the car into a chair car even though they had paid extra money to ride in the Pullman and sleep. Another passenger, a lady who was coming to Amarillo, stuck it out all through the Fort Worth ordeal, but she moved to the chair car soon afterward.

With the train moving again, the air conditioning began to work. But another calamity showed up. On the old car, the method of ventilating the lower berths is through the use of fans hooked into the curtains. The fans pull cool air from the aisle into the berth, and if the fans don't work, no air can get in.

To our personal knowledge, five of the eight fans on the car did not work. It was stifling inside the berths, and the only people who were able to get much sleep were some airmen who had finished basic training the day before and were on their way to technical training schools. They had been up since around 2 a. m., and were quite tired.

Another small difficulty showed up on the car. When it was placed in the train in Dallas, none of the carmen had bothered to check it for water. Therefore it had none in the tank. The porter found it out in short order and arranged for water in Fort Worth.

In Fort Worth, the carman started putting water in the tank but it ran out just as quickly as he put it in. He checked the tank and found that the drain plug was missing. He found a piece of wood and whittled out a plug and finally got water on the car.

The next morning as we neared Amarillo, the passengers began to think of a little breakfast, or at least coffee. Going to the diner, they found eight tables seating four people each. And they found one waiter instead of the normal two—why we couldn't find out.

When we got back there, there were 29 people. The waiter was working as fast as he could, but there were more than he could handle—especially since half a dozen were getting off in Amarillo and had only a short time. They got nothing to eat.

The trip was topped off by a bit of aggravating silliness. We pulled to within about 300 yards of the station and stopped. We waited and waited and waited for 10 long minutes—and anyone at a window could see the station.

Finally the train pulled up in front of the station and we unloaded with relief. But as we got off the train, another train pulled in between us and the station and we all had to walk around the new train. We would have had plenty of time to get off and to the station before the second train got in if we hadn't waited just short of the station.

The Pullman porter put it this way: "It looks like they're trying to discourage passengers, and that's no way to make friends."

We don't tell this story to make it look as if we had a hard trip and everyone should feel sorry for us. We tell the story in the hopes that someone will recognize that the Burlington lost a good number of potential friends Saturday night, and no amount of editorializing is going to convince any of them that the railroads are in trouble and need the help of the people.

Good Neighborliness

Canyon has had a number of good neighbors during the last year, and we feel it only right that we recognize them.

Our good neighbors have been the construction companies working on roads. Remember what they have done for us. During the snow storm, the companies put their machines to work clearing the highways. When it was time to level off an area for the Little League ball park, a company loaned machinery and men to do the work. The same company had done dirt work for the Babe Ruth park for free, too.

Last week when R. B. Elliott's wheat field was on fire, the only company left working here sent water trucks to help fight the blaze. The company hasn't asked for any money for that, either.

We're proud we've had Ivan Dement Construction Company, Gilvin-Terrill Construction Company and H. L. Stafford Construction Company as our neighbors. We hope they come again.

What Our Neighbors Say . . .

Scissor Snippings

Jimmie Gillentine in the Herford Brand: The gentle art of being a parent—be it father or mother—often presents problems which stump the nation's industrial tycoons. Such a situation was recently demonstrated on a father in San Francisco.

The 11-year-old son played hooky from school, "borrowed" $5 from the family "new car fund" in the cookie jar and spent the afternoon downtown. The lad took in three western movies, purchased a $1 chance on a new car, played all the machines in a penny arcade and literally "stuffed himself" with candy, popcorn and other tempting morsels.

The situation might still be undiscovered, except for the fact that a man called that night to ask the boy's father where to deliver the new automobile the youngster had won in the raffle.

What the father can't figure out now is how he will ever fully convince his 11-year-old son that crime doesn't pay. Furthermore, if you have a good, logical answer, let us know.

Ernest Joiner in the Rails Banner: Ike is planning a budget of $80 billion for the next session of Congress. He has been the biggest spender in all American history, reducing Roosevelt and Truman to the penny-ante class. Strangest part of all is that the country's conservatives, forever in favor of less government spending and lower taxes, are the president's chief supporters in spending recklessly money that does not even exist. The conservative business man who will not pay a small tax to get his property paved in Ralls, will not bat an eye, nor change his party loyalty, when the president whams him for half his yearly earnings to pacify restless Patagonians and shoot rockets at the moon. It used to be the liberals who voted for wild spending, now it's the conservatives. What happened?

Dear Editor R. C.

Leaving Canyon early in the morning for Sad Monkey, Texas, and arriving back late at night, a letter is my only way of conveying some thoughts.

YOUR EDITORIAL, GOOD FLAG PLAN

Years ago I lived at Quanah, Texas, and each merchant had a hole in front of his place of business for a flag pole. The problem of the hole being filled with dirt was easily solved by someone who brought in a pet crow. The crow spent his time daily going from one flag pole to another cleaning out everything that had accumulated in the hole. The plan worked well for a time. Then one day the crow flew in the window of a cotton office located in the second story of one of the business firms. He left out of the window with a bill full of cotton ginning receipts worth thousands of dollars to the cotton firm occupying the second story office. The next day he repeated his performance in another cotton office. The third day, all the cotton brokers were loaded for crow, and he became a dead crow.

This plan would work well in Canyon as there are no second story cotton offices, and said crow could devote his time to keeping the flag holes clean.

And as for getting a flag, I believe I read in the Amarillo paper where the JCs were attempting to get a used flag from Washington, D. C., that is simple. Flags flown over the White House or Capitol building are used only for one day. A new one is used every day and the used one day flags are distributed through our good Senators and Representatives to communities wanting them. A costly deal for the taxpayer in having to buy a new flag each day for our capitol buildings, but who cares, our government has plenty of paper and ink to issue new IOUs.

SANTA FE WRECK IDENTIFIED AS SOUTH OF AMARILLO
Let's have more wrecks if we can let the Amarillo people know where Canyon (City of) is. Every day at the State Park people from Amarillo ask me where I live. I reply, "In Canyon." They reply, "Down in the Canyon here?" I reply, "No, in the City of Canyon." They then ask, "Where is it located?"

I GIVE YOU TEXAS BY BOYCE HOUSE

His account this week of the early life in Borger is fairly accurate, but he did not investigate thoroughly or he would also have given the account of the postmaster, during the early days, being taken from his home one night, along with his wife, to the post-office. There he was bound after having been forced to open the safe, and left with his wife all night until employees released them the next morning. Later it was found that it was an inside job, and the postmaster was a part of it. The first night I arrived in Borger in 1930, a man was killed on the street just outside the front door of the store I had just arrived that day to manage. After three weeks, I went South for warmer climates. Had Boyce House lived in Borger during those days he would have written volumes instead of a column on the early days there.

HOURS ESTABLISHED FOR CITY SWIMMING POOL

It is noted that the public can use this pool only during certain hours, and private parties can reserve the use of the pool during other hours. I haven't been in swimming for 30 years, and don't intend to take another public swim for the next 30 years so the hours of operation mean nothing to me. But from a legal standpoint, can a public swimming pool, voted on by the voters of the city and being paid for by city funds, be restricted at any time to a certain few? I don't believe this would stand up should someone question it in the courts.

Come out to see us this summer at the State Park.

Cemetery Group To Finish 1 Year

July 17 will mark one year of operation for the Dreamland Cemetery Association, and members can pause to look back at a fruitful year, according to Jerry LaGrone of Warren-LaGrone Funeral Home.

One year ago, Randall County ceased operating Dreamland Cemetery, and the cemetery was deeded to a group of interested citizens who formed the Dreamland Cemetery Association to care for the cemetery. Under an elected board of directors, the group set out to put a perpetual care plan in operation.

was hired as managers. As the new managers were checking records to determine the identity of property owners, workers were clearing the cemetery of dead shrubs and trees and replanting native grasses. A full time caretaker was hired.

A financial plan for the perpetual care program was arranged, and a goal of $17,500, the minimum amount needed to begin the operation, was set. The finances were split, with 40 per cent going into a trust fund and 60 per cent going to meet current expenses. Only the interest from the trust fund will be used to keep up the program.

Long neglected records were studied in an effort to determine the owners and sites of grave spaces. Owners were invited to place their lots in the permanent care program for $50 per grave space. Once paid, the $50 fee placed the grave space in the program permanently, with no additional charges later.

By the time that the minimum goal was reached recently, a sprinkler irrigation system for the cemetery was past the planning stage. Three wells were installed at the west end of Dreamland Cemetery, and portable pipe for the irrigation system was purchased.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars donated a flagpole for the cemetery, for which the board of directors extended a vote of thanks to the group. In dedication services for the flagpole, which were held May 30, the Rev. Donald G. Price, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, led a memorial service, and the American Legion placed small flags on the graves of veterans.

With all the improvements, the cemetery association still has work to do. Visitors are running over the portable pipe with their cars, ruining it for an irrigation system. Not all of the property owners have been located, and in some cases, not all have been identified.

Workers have been replanting native grass in areas recently leveled for better irrigation.

Members of the association and Warren-LaGrone, as managers, are still working to clear away confusion over the cemetery program. LaGrone has asked that any person who is confused or curious about the program drop by the Warren-LaGrone offices, 1702 Fifth Avenue.

Church Missionary Honored With Tea

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Murray was the scene Tuesday from 4 to 6 p. m. of a tea honoring Joyce Hill, a missionary to Cuba for the Methodist Church.

Miss Hill, in a light blue dress, wore a pink corsage presented her by the Joyce Hill Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. She answered questions about the religions, race, climate and revolution of Cuba.

Mrs. Edward L. Lindsey, chairman of the Joyce Hill Circle, served punch and cake from a lace covered table centered with a tall punch bowl, flanked by bouquets of white shaded pink gladioli. Officers of the WSCS assisted Mrs. Murray as hostesses and presented Miss Hill with a gift.

Miss Hill, daughter of George Hill, has been in Cuba as a missionary for the past three years.

NEWS LETTER
FROM CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS
OF THE 18TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Defense Appropriations

The House last week voted 389 to 0 to give the Department of Defense $38½ billion for the 1959 fiscal year. The House added an amendment which would keep the standing army at 900 thousand during 1959. The House felt, by the tune of 224 votes for to 158 votes against, that the army should not be reduced to the 870,000 figure suggested by the President. In 1955 the Army had 1,109,300; 1,025,800 in 1956, and 998,000 in 1957.

The President first suggested for 1958 a standing army of 1 million, but subsequently reduced his estimate to 900,000. He then urged a further reduction to 870,000 for 1959. The matter was thoroughly debated, both in committee and before the House, and the conclusion to fix the standing army at 900,000 for 1959 was well justified.

The fact is the Army gets the smallest amount of money from the defense budget, some 8½ billion; the Air Force approximately 18 billion, and the Navy about 12 billion.

The tremendous amount of money involved in the over-all defense picture is one of the bones of contention between the White House and the Congress with relation to the reorganization plan offered by the President. Our military establishment has always been maintained under civilian control through a Secretary for each respective Service.

The unification bill of a few years ago setting up the Department of Defense created a single cabinet office of Secretary of Defense, but did not abolish the administrative powers of the Secretaries of each of the Services.

The latest requests of the President for changes in the bill written by the Armed Services Committee of the House would indicate that the Administration wants to concentrate all power in the Secretary of Defense and leave with the Secretaries of Army, Navy and Air Force limited powers that would be ineffective as against the whims or desires of the Secretary of Defense.

To follow the President's suggestion would be to place in the hands of the man, the Secretary of Defense, almost absolute powers with relation to the military forces of this nation. That power, coupled with the power to control the expenditure of 38½ billions of dollars for the next fiscal year plus carry-over sums, could, and possibly would, create an over-all power in one man that could measurably affect the economy in any section of this country.

Although it could be argued that the proposal of the President would not, in itself, set up a Prussian-type of high command, it cannot be successfully argued that the powers placed in one man would not provide a vehicle by which a Prussian-type command could be set up in a very few years and perpetuated for many.

Taxes

The House of Representatives last week granted a one-year extension of the existing corporate normal tax rates and of certain excise tax rates. The measure came before the House under a closed rule. This means that no amendments or changes in the bill could be made except those named and provided for in the resolution calling for debate of the bill.

In other words, it was a case where you had to take the bill as it was or kill the whole measure. There was much dissatisfaction with this procedure, because there were some items that many members wanted to reduce, such as automobile excise taxes.

It was the feeling of many that a reduction of these taxes might generate some help for the recessionary situation that has developed in the automobile industry. However, since this could not be done separately, it was practically impossible to get it done at all. The reason being that the bill under discussion carried with it a continuation of excise taxes on whisky, beer, wine and certain tobacco products; therefore, the killing of the bill, in order to provide a reduction in automobile excise taxes, would have also resulted in killing taxes on whisky, wine, beer and certain tobacco products.

So under the circumstances, the measure passed the House and was sent to the Senate. The bill had been recommended by President Eisenhower for passage and, in fact, it had been introduced by the Chairman of the Tax Committee at the request of the Administration.

Transportation taxes on freight and passengers were not included in the extension of the taxes under the bill that was before the House last week. There was a discussion about the possibility of getting tax relief in the transportation field, but the indications are, both from the Administration's forces and the leadership in the House, that there will be no tax reductions in any areas this year, except the possibility of some tax relief for small business.

This, of course, made many of us rather sad, because we had hoped that some of the taxes could be revised so that relief could be had where it was most needed.

World Affairs

Much could be said about the many conflicts across the face of the earth, but space is running out so I will leave with you a poem that was sent to me by my good friend, Dennis Zimmerman, from

Tulia. It is most appropriate and reads as follows:

"This world is a wonderful world, Its wonders never cease, All civilized nations are at war, All savages are at peace."

"I cook complete broiler meals for my family—thanks to my Electric Range!"

Broiler Recipe...

Here's the recipe Mrs. Wadley used when these pictures were taken. It's a complete, delicious broiler meal — one you'll want to try.

Steaks
2 cans asparagus
1 can pimiento
2 cans Mexican Tomatoes
Grated Cheese

Drain liquid from cans of vegetables and arrange in bottom of the broiler pan. Place asparagus down center of pan. Place pimiento strips down the center of asparagus. Arrange 1 can of Mexican on each side of asparagus. Season vegetables with salt and pepper.

Wipe steaks with damp cloth, score fat around edges to prevent curling. Place on rack of cold broiler pan, season, and place under broiler unit of electric range so the top of the steak is four or five inches from the broiler unit.

Turn oven control to Broil. Leave oven door ajar. Cook on one side until brown (about 12 minutes). Turn and brown other side (about 10 minutes).

Cut tomatoes in halves and put grated cheese on top. Arrange on broiler rack just before steaks are done.

says Mrs. Gary Wadley,

GUYMON, OKLAHOMA

That's the nice thing about an electric range — you can cook complete meals — at one time.

There are several ways, too. You may cook complete deep well meals, complete oven meals, complete surface unit meals or, as

Mrs. Wadley favors, complete broiler meals. All come out tasty, tempting and nutritious.

Everybody has heard of "salted" mines, which means of course that a mine was made to appear much richer than it was. One way to do this was to expose a formation, then fire a shotgun at it — the firer of said shotgun first having loaded the weapon with bits of gold. Doubtless there were other ways.

Perhaps not so well known is the fact that an oil well can be salted, too. It is related that a promoter late one night climbed to the top of a derrick of a well that he was drilling. He was all alone, having given the crew the night off. He did not climb to the top of the rig to scan the horizon for wandering bands of redskins nor was he seeking privacy for meditation.

He had with him a bucket and he poured the contents on the derrick. He repeated this, over and over, until the derrick was black and glistening with oil — for oil was what the bucket had contained.

Next morning, he had a picture made and he sent it out to the stockholders as proof that he had drilled a gusher and please rush the special assessment of one dollar per share so he could provide steel storage until the pipeline was extended to the well.

"She came in during the night; made a big flow," he explained to the crew.

If they thought it slightly odd that the inside of the derrick was not oil-stained, they made no comment. And of course the underside of the structure did not show in the photograph.

The stockholders hastened to send in the special assessment.

Funny thing, though! The promoter drilled deeper — and actually did get a gusher.

One of the greatest orators this country has ever known was Robert G. Ingersoll. He was an agnostic and he gave a lecture, "Mistakes of Moses" to large crowds.

On one occasion, an editor announced that when Ingersoll spoke in that city, he would answer the orator in the next day's paper. The editor took a seat on the platform, a pad of paper in readiness on his knee and his pencil poised. Ingersoll began speaking. An hour later when the lecture ended, the editor's pencil and pad were lying on the floor — he had not made a single note.

The ceremony was performed by Mrs. Leatha Fullerton, past matron and installing officer, assisted by Mrs. Ildagerte Wirt, marshal; Mrs. Faye Cannedy, secretary; Mrs. Irene Beard, chaplain; and Lucy Brown, organist. Mrs. Beard, retiring Worthy Matron, welcomed the guests and introduced the installing officer, who in turn introduced her assistants.

The following officers were also installed:

Love story

It seems this girl was so cr-r-azy about the service she got from her Phillips 66 Dealer that she'd buy only one gallon of Flite-Fuel at a time : : just so she'd have an excuse to come back oftener.

It was rather trying for this Phillips 66 Dealer, considering all the free services he provides for every customer on every visit. Brushing out inside the car, for example. Cleaning the windows all around. Checking the tires, battery, and radiator.

It turned out just about as you'd expect. Such an obliging fellow, she decided, would be a handy man around the house. So she hooked him.

The trouble is, of course, that most Phillips 66 Dealers are so dedicated to their jobs that household chores get short shift. No moral here for wives. Obvious moral for motorists:

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

The supervisors of the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District want to point out that now is the time to start worrying about wind erosion occurring next year. If the stubble that is left after wheat harvest is managed, we should not have any wind erosion. On most of our soils in this district about 750 pounds of wheat residue on the surface of the soil at planting time will prevent wind erosion.

Below is listed the expected amount of residue reduction on each operation, with various types of equipment: blade type, 10%; one-way disc, 50%; 32 inch or wider sweeps, 10%; rodweeder, 10%; heavy duty cultivator shanks spaced 12 inches apart, 15%.

From the above information it would be easy to tell what kind of equipment is needed to keep the proper amount of crop residues on the surface of the soil to keep it from blowing. After estimating the amount of crop residues you have, you can then choose the equipment you wish to work your wheat land with and know whether you will hold your soil or invite wind erosion next year.

It is far easier to keep your land from blowing by stubble mulching than it is to chisel the land after it starts blowing.

Some of the heavy residues present this year could be made to last for a few years, if the land is worked with the proper equipment. According to records, stubble mulched wheat will outyield clean tilled land and you don't have to worry about wind erosion.

Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service, assisting the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District, will be glad to explain how stubble mulching will fit into your farming operation.

San Antonio will be host city for the state's big political shindig this year—the State Democratic Convention Sept. 9.

By VERN SANFORD
 Texas Press Association

If a fire-breathing dragon were loose on the Texas countryside — smashing cars and their occupants, slapping down pedestrians — there would be no question about the need to get rid of the monster. An aroused public would demand that SOMEBODY DO SOMETHING!

In actuality, innocent people ARE being maimed or killed every day as they go about their business. Thousands are lost every year.

But somebody IS doing something. Right now, officials and private citizens are forming a massive "posse." They're going after the killer — the monstrous indifference, carelessness and other difficulties that bring death on Texas streets and highways.

Leaders are members of the Texas Traffic Safety Council created by the Legislature just a year ago. Gov. Price Daniel is chairman; Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, vice-chairman. Heads of numerous other state agencies are members.

Formation of the Council was the starting point for a campaign which, for the first time, brought the official power and prestige of state government to bear on a growing problem. For some years Texas vehicles and their drivers had been outgrowing highway facilities and outdistancing law enforcement agencies by sheer weight of numbers. In 1956 Texas had an appalling all-time high of 2,611 motoricides.

Governor Daniel called it a public emergency.

With only a skeleton organization, the Council hammered away through 1957 at tightening enforcement, organizing holiday safety campaigns. By the end of the year the toll had dropped by 72.

In February of this year, the governor appointed the state's first full-time traffic safety director. He is Brad H. Smith, veteran South Texas newspaper, radio and television man and past president of the Texas Press Association, who has for many years been a volunteer worker in traffic safety.

First move was to acquaint Texans with the enormity of the problem. In this Smith says he's had unstinting help from mass news media and volunteer assistance from every type of civic group.

In April Governor Daniel climaxed publicity efforts with a statewide broadcast calling for a "crack down" on two major traffic evils — speeding and driving while intoxicated. Simultaneously, local traffic safety councils were formed in 190 counties. An estimated 5,000 people participated.

Meanwhile, the battle is being pushed on other fronts. A survey of traffic-controlling resources resulted in recommendation of a 7-point program to bring Texas up to par:

1. A statewide program to bring greater public cooperation.
2. More rigid enforcement of present laws.
3. Adoption of the Uniform Driver's License Law.
4. A law to permit police to use chemical tests and other scientific aids to detect drunken drivers.
5. Development of strong, fair, effective traffic courts.
6. A State Highway Patrol double its present size.
7. Universal driver education in public schools supported by state aid.

Besides the state agencies working cooperatively through the new Council, other groups are part of the crusade. A major source of help is the 20-year-old Texas Safety Association, a pioneer group which finances its efforts on a voluntary basis.

Texas Legislative Council is studying traffic problems and will report to the 56th Legislature.

Bringing new weight is the Governor's Highway Safety Commission. Scores of prominent Texans answered Governor Daniel's call to give citizen support to official efforts. First Commission meeting is set tentatively for Fall.

Results thus far are encouraging. For the first 2 weeks of this year the toll was down by 101 persons, about 11 per cent, from last year. There were 163 fewer deaths, down about 17 per cent, from '56.

Goal for 1958 is a year-long 10 per cent drop or 254 lives saved — a real stab at the dragon.

July Snow Storm
 Next summer's Democratic precinct conventions will be like an extra after-hours election. There'll be rival "platforms" and rival candidates, but only one key issue — who's to control the party.

Battle lines were drawn when the State Democratic Executive Committee held its June meeting in Austin. Governor Daniel, as head of the party in Texas, called on his moderate-conservative cohorts to "snow under" the liberal-labor Democrats of Texas at the conventions. He accused DOT of trying to usurp the party name for a "splinter group."

SDEC is recommending electing precinct delegates to county conventions by primary ballot and moving primaries up to May and June. It also suggests a search for means to prevent party line crossing at primary time.

DOT is pushing for its "code of ethics" for conducting conventions and a party registration law to keep out Republicans.

Relative merits of the two "platforms" may be as confusing to some voters as a snowstorm in July. What's clear is that if the moderate-conservatives win out, Governor Daniel will continue at the helm of party affairs in Texas.

If the DOT prevails, Mrs. Frankie Randolph, national committeewoman and DOT chairman, will take the wheel.
